

Prometheus Energy Receives 2011 Platts Award of Excellence

Winners Honored at Platts Global Energy Outlook Forum

Redmond – December 1, 2011 – Prometheus Energy, a finalist in the Platts 2011 Global Energy Awards – ‘Rising Star Company category, was recently honored with an Award of Excellence from Platts, a leading global provider of energy, metals and petrochemicals information.

Prometheus Energy is the largest and fastest growing supplier of liquefied natural gas fuel solutions to the industrial sector. Prometheus Energy was selected by the Platts Global Energy judging team based on demonstration of growth, market opportunity, quality of commercial innovation, operational excellence, and strategic vision.

Each year, the Platts Global Energy Awards program, which identifies exemplary innovation and leadership in 19 performance categories, also honors a select few companies or individuals from among the Global Energy Awards finalists to receive a separate, special Award of Excellence for their strategic contributions to energy. This year’s 2011 Platts Award of Excellence winners are finalists from the “Rising Star-Company” and “Sustainable Technology Innovation of the Year” categories.

“The finalists from these categories have the potential to make a significant impact on the new energy economy and to pave the way for the next best new technology solution and we’re proud to name them 2011 Platts Award of Excellence winners,” said Larry Neal, president of Platts.

Prometheus Energy provides turnkey solutions to convert industrial users of crude-derived fuels like diesel, propane and heating oil to clean, domestic LNG. The company’s customers benefit from reduced fuel costs and improved environmental footprints. Prometheus Energy has created first of a kind conversions for industrial customers in a variety of diverse sectors and remote locations, and is further developing the emerging market for LNG as an industrial fuel.

Award of Excellence winners were honored at a lunch reception during the Platts Global Energy Outlook Forum. Now in its fifth year, the Forum gathered industry leaders, economists and government officials for wide-ranging roundtable discussions on the world’s search for clean and sustainable energy solutions.

Following the Forum, more than 500 energy industry executives from around the globe walked the red carpet into Cipriani Wall Street, the site of the 2011 Platts Global Energy Awards gala, which was emceed by CNBC television anchor Amanda Drury. Global Energy Award winners received honors on stage, having been selected from more than 200 nominations worldwide by an independent panel of judges.
